

TOWN BYLAW FOUND NOW PARTLY OBSOLETE

MATTER OF REVISION LEFT FOR DELIBERATION BY 1932 COUNCIL

This is the official record of the proceedings of the Town Council at their regular meeting on Tuesday of last week when Mayor Foster and a full Council were present.

This recorded proceedings of Council at their previous meeting were read and on motion adopted.

A communication from the Edmonton Journal, relative to the financing position of the Town of Wainwright, was, on motion, referred to the Secretary-Treasurer for reply.

The financial statement of Auditors Paton & Johnston up to December 31st, 1931 was presented and on motion, this report was accepted and ordered filed.

The committee on Health and Sanitation reported on new tank, etc., and on motion, the report was accepted and adopted.

The committee on Assessment, Property and By-Laws reported as follows:

We feel sure that the health of the people of Wainwright is a matter of great concern to every member of this Council and consequently we are of opinion that every precaution should be taken to safeguard the health of the community by taking such steps as will assure them the opportunity of obtaining milk and meat as free from contamination as possible.

The Town Act of the Province of Alberta gives a Town Council authority to pass By-Laws for the purpose of inspecting and regulating slaughter-houses and dairies and all other places within or without the town from which or through which food is brought for sale within the town. Under these By-Laws, the Council may frame regulations as to building and sanitation in case the food is to be offered for sale within the town although the place where the food is prepared lies without the town. In a town of the size of Wainwright, where so much food is being brought to be consumed, we are of opinion that much more rigid precautions should be taken in the inspection of the places where this food is prepared and the contamination to which it is exposed before being offered for sale as food within the town. This is especially true or meats being purchased by our butchers ready dressed. Anyone visiting the slaughtering grounds in the recent killing of buffalo, must have been impressed with the care exercised by the Dominion Government that no meat unfit for human consumption should be allowed to be put on the market. The same conditions exist in animals of the domestic family and some care should surely be exercised to protect the people of our town from meat unfit for human consumption. We would, therefore, recommend these matters as of interest to this Council.

The Council has authority also for the passing of by-laws licensing, regulating and controlling auctioneers, hawkers, peddlars and transient traders; persons who have or keep for gain or hire any pool or billiard tables; draymen, using either horses or motor power; milk dealers; real estate dealers or agents and automobile sales agents; soft drink vendors; circuses and shows of all kinds; halls and places of amusement; moving picture shows; butcher shops and stalls; livery, feed and sale stables; automobile liveries and laundry. Some of these are already included in a by-law of the town but this by-law includes some businesses over which the town no longer has jurisdiction in the way of licensing. This by-law should therefore be reviewed and modernized. This is a matter for the whole Council as to the businesses to be licensed and the prices to be charged. For this reason it might be advisable to leave this part of this report to be dealt with by the incoming Council.

On motion, the report of the committee on Assessment, Property and By-Laws was accepted and incorporated in the proceedings of the meeting, and referred to the new Council for consideration and action.

On motion, the Secretary-Treasurer was instructed to obtain from Mr. W. T. Brunker a statement of his account for electric fixtures furnished by him for the Fire Hall.

On motion the Council was regularly adjourned.

CARNIVAL AT RINK FRIDAY EVENING NEXT

A great deal of time and effort is being expended to make Friday evening next a real gala night for both skaters and spectators. Thanks to the splendid co-operation of the Wainwright business men in the presentation of such a grand array of prizes as can be seen in Monty's window for this affair, the ice carnival should be assured of success. Get your costume ready and compete for one of these dandy awards, or if too old for "sich doin's" get to the rink on Friday night anyway. The fun will be fast and furious and you'll sure have a good time. Hot dogs and coffee will be obtainable there, too! Let's go!

 The one night you should be at the rink is Friday next for the big Ice Carnival. Get your skates and come along.

Mr. A. Arthur of Aurburda's, and Mr. F. Stranahan, of Batteliev's, were the accredited delegates to the big U.F.A. convention in Edmonton last week.

We learn that Mr. Jim Wilson is in the Royal Alexandra hospital in Edmonton, where he will undergo an operation this week. We extend hopes for a speedy and complete recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Dupere are in Edmonton, where Mr. Dupere is undergoing further treatment for his eyes.

Moved by Coun. Mills—That the letter dated December 21st, 1931, from department of municipal affairs re triennial assessment be noted.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Jones—That all deputy returning officers for divisions 1, 3 and 5 be authorized to appoint poll clerks if needed.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Jones—That Mrs. Jas. Church be paid $20.00 aid and relief for the months of January, February and March and $10.00 per month for the balance of 1932.

Amendment moved by Coun. Black—That Municipality does not pay more than $10.00 per month for year 1932.

In voting, the original motion carried—4 ayes, 2 nays.

Moved by Coun. Sutherland—That bills and accounts as presented, amounting to $658.70 be passed for payment.—Carried.

On a motion by Coun. Withnell the Council then adjourned till 10 a.m. Saturday, February 26th next.

Mr. W. T. McDonough, of Jasper, was in town at the week end, in connection with his office as general agent of the C.N.R.

LOCAL NOTES

We are glad to note that little Walter Potimas who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis at the hospital has now recovered nicely and returned to his home.

 Get out your skates. Special prizes for continued skaters of forty years or over. Try to pick off one of these.

It should be noted that the plan is open at the Wainwright pharmacy for the entertainment being put on by the pupils of St. Joseph's convent. Get your ticket early and have it reserved.

Fire destroyed a henhouse at the home of Mr. E. Moore, north of town at the beginning of last week. The building was heated by natural gas from one of the oil wells, and the fire was caused by uncontrolled pressure.

ONTARIO TROUT ARE "PUT ON THE SPOT"

Ten thousand Ontario trout are being put on the spot. They are being taken for a ride but contrary to long-held principles, it is for their own finny good. The provincial government is the originator of the idea and its fisheries department is moving its trout rearing station near Brighton Ont., to a new station at Dorion, some 40 miles east of Fonthill. The Canadian National Railway has already moved one shipment of 1,250 trout in a specially equipped baggage car and it will require some ten more trips to establish the Brighton trout in their new quarters. It is planned to stock the northwestern section of Ontario with speckled and brown trout raised at Dorion.

WEDDING BELLS

KEIFER—BETTS

A quiet little wedding was celebrated on Saturday afternoon last at the First Baptist church in Edmonton, when the pastor, Rev. G. Stone, conducted the nuptial ceremony between Eva M. Betts, formerly of Wainwright, and Clair H. Keifer. After a short honeymoon the newly weds will take up their residence in the city.

The staff at the Buffalo Park are now shipping the hides from the recent kill. Many of these will be made into coats for the R.C.M.P. as usual.

 This is leap year and we expect Miss Property will not be too bashful. Anyway we are ordering a large supply of house-cleaning supplies and have our new 1932 samples of wall papers for your inspection at the Atlas yard. Joe Welch.

DEATH OF MRS. ELIZA WOODWARD

AFTER ILLNESS OF SOME MONTHS OLD RESIDENT
PASSES AWAY

Again the grim reaper has visited the district, and on Wednesday of last week, Mrs. Eliza Woodward passed to her reward at the age of 66 years.

The late Mrs. Woodward was born in Richmond, Surrey, Eng., and came to Canada with her husband (who pre-deceased her two years ago) and family in 1920, settling on the farm north of town where they have since resided.

Some months ago she was taken sick, and was later taken to hospital where every effort was made to prolong life. Some couple of weeks ago, her deceased lady returned to her home feeling somewhat better from the results of an operation, but despite the best of care and attention she passed away as stated.

Left to mourn are Miss Lottie Woodward, Mrs. P. Rutherford, Mrs. R. Moffatt and Mrs. Arthur Harden, all of this district and four sons, and two other sons were killed in Alfred, Wilfrid, Sydney and Leonard during the Great War.

The funeral took place on Friday afternoon, the Rev. A. Trendell, of St. Thomas' church conducting the services both in church and at the graveside before a large gathering of friends and sympathizers. During the service a couple of favorite hymns of the deceased were sung.

McLeod's parlors had charge of the arrangements and the pallbearers were Messrs F. Church, J. Clough, T. Sheridan, A. Kinghorn and M. G. Cardell.

Among the floral tributes were: The Family, cross; Mr. and Mrs. A. Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. P. Rutherford, Mr. and Mrs. R. Moffatt, Mr. and Mrs. A. Harden, Mr. and Mrs. J. Muddie, Mr. and Mrs. F. Church, Mr. and Mrs. F. Dickson, Mr. A. Alexander, Mr. W. Alexander, wreaths; and sprays from Mr. and Mrs. A. Muddie, Mr. and Mrs. Woods, Mr. and Mrs. Cardell and others.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all neighbors and friends who so kindly helped us in our late bereavement in the loss of our dear mother, the late Mrs. E. Woodward, and also for the beautiful floral tributes of love and respect.

—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Wahlstrom—That the next meeting of the Council be held on Friday, February 19th at the hour of 1 p.m.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Wahlstrom—That cheque No. 306 (V. A. Lindgren) be ordered cancelled, and another issued in the same amount.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Jackson—That the report of Coun. Ker and the Secretary concerning the McPeak Relief Grant, be received and filed, and that the commission be discharged of same.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Ker—That starting from February 1st, the grant to Clutie McPeak be reduced to the sum of $360.00 a year, to be in effect until the 31st day of July, when it shall come up again for further consideration.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Wahlstrom—That the Secretary notify O. L. Dempsey that absolutely nothing, already assigned to the District, is to be sold to him before procuring an order from the Council Board.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Brown—That Roscoe Ellinger of Coar, be notified to make settlement with the district for all wire removed and sold by him off the N.E. quarter of 17-41-5.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Jackson—That we do now adjourn.

LOCAL NOTES

Installation of the new natural gas lights at the Sydenham school is now complete. This gives them light as well as heat from this natural resource.

Mrs. W. Huston and little daughter Mary are visiting in the city for a few days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Brunker visited the city at the beginning of the week on business.

 The Canadian dollar is only worth 85c in the U.S., but compared to 1930 prices it is worth $1.35 with which to buy lumber and building material, paint, etc., at the Atlas. QUICKEST WAY TO MAKE YOUR LODGE UNSUCCESSFUL

The following clipped from an exchange contains so much sarcastic philosophy on rules that we reprint it for our readers:—The rules are

1. Don't come to meetings.
2. If you do come, come late.
3. If the weather does not suit you don't think of coming.
4. If you attend a meeting, find fault with the work of the officers and other members.
5. Never accept office, as it is easier to criticize than to do things.
6. Nevertheless, get more if you are not appointed on the committee, but if you are, do not attend the committee meetings.
7. If asked by the chairman to give your opinion on some matter, just remark you have nothing to say. After the meeting tell everyone how things ought to be done.
8. Do nothing more than is absolutely necessary, but when members roll up their sleeves and willingly and unselfishly use their ability to help matters along, howl that the lodge is run by a clique.
9. Hold back your dues as long as possible, or don't pay them at all.
10. Don't bother about getting new members. "Let George do that!"

"Bobby Burns' night" was fittingly celebrated on Monday evening at several private parties in town.

PUCK-CHASERS IN REAL HOCKEY BATTLE

JUNIORS MAKE SENIORS GO
SOME TO RAISE
7-5 SCORE

Another great hockey game was staged between the town Seniors and High School on Thursday of last week, in which the Seniors again came off victorious by a score of 7-5.

The game was a good one and there was never a dull moment. In the first period, only one goal was scored; the honors going to Johnny Lauderout.

The second stanza produced six markers, each team getting three; and in the final the Seniors scored three and High school two.

Although the score was large, it was by no means one-sided and incidentally both goalies turned in a great performance.

Collett was the bright and shining light for the school boys, getting four of the five goals scored by the team, the other going to Ken. Tory on a lone rush. Stuart and Tory should have had a goodly number of tallies but were inclined to shoot too far out.

Garderton showed up well on defence and his end-to-end rushes were spectacular. The Juniors were going at top speed through the entire game and backchecked at all times with machine-like precision.

For the Seniors, Buckle was high scorer with three goals to his credit while Lauderout, Mitchell, Dupre and Murray got one each. The senior team has improved wonderfully and appear to be in good condition. Buckle, Murray, Lauderout and Dupre with their boring-in tactics, make plenty bad medicine for the Juniors but have never yet taken the pep out of them.

The following is the line-up:—

Seniors	Goal	School
Boyd		Pigeon
Buckle	Def.	V. Ganderto
Mitchell	Def.	K. Tory
Dupre	Forwards	Collett
Murray	"	Stuart
Spence	"	C. Tory
Lauderout	"	Wallace
Alderman	"	Bradley
		Ricker

Referee — P. Poltras.

These two teams are certainly giving the public some real entertainment this winter and those who do not attend the games are missing a real treat. At the low price of admission charged every red-blooded sports fan in town should turn out to give the boys a boost, as they have considerable expense in up-keep, and need funds to carry on.

We trust that all who can, will turn out to these games and boost our athletes, and we can assure them they will be well repaid. Watch the bill-board at the post office corner every day for dates, as games are generally arranged on short notice.

ANNUAL MEETING OF ST. THOMAS' CHURCH

SHOWS GREAT PROGRESS DURING
PAST YEAR; HAPPY TIME
AT GATHERING

The annual meeting and social of St. Thomas' (Ang.) church was held in the Masonic hall on Wednesday evening last, when a large number gathered to hear the reports of officers in charge of the various activities of the church.

The vicar, Rev. A. M. Trendell, after opening the meeting with prayer, expressed his pleasure at the privilege of giving another report, saying that it was with deep thankfulness and gratitude that he did so. At times, he said, in the past year there had been some feeling of trepidation, minds were sometimes frayed with depression and anxiety, but with the loyal support of all, one of the church's most successful years work had just been concluded.

Something of the Paul-like spirit had prevailed; we had been troubled yet not distressed; cast down, but not in despair; poor, yet making many rich. Sometimes sorrowful yet always rejoicing.

Looking forward to the future, the reverend gentleman entreated his hearers to do so with confidence and hope, saying that God, who had begun a good work in us will help carry it through to the end, and exhorted them to look out beyond the church to the community, and endeavor to make a difference to the town and district.

To this end, Rev. Trendell mentioned three personal responsibilities viz.: (a) Visiting members of the congregation and the sick, (b) Looking for the best in people and never the worst, and (c) Asking ourselves the question—Is there anything I can do to help?

In his review of the past year's work, the vicar stated that there had been larger congregations and more communicants. Country points were about the same as the previous year, but Irma had advanced. There had been 29 baptisms, 5 weddings, and 9 funerals in the parish and also one confirmation. The Sunday school had 75 scholars enrolled and there were 159 country children on the "Sunday school-by-post" mailing list.

The speaker extended thanks to the Vestry, Women's Auxiliary, Sunday school teachers, Mr. H. C. Lilly, (Boy Scouts) Miss Flemming (Girl Guides) the Misses E. and K. Hart, (Junior W.A.), the Vestry at country points, the Misses Ford for S.S. B.P. work, and in fact, to all who had assisted in any way during the year. The church had been rekindled and painted and Messrs. Chesterman, Taylor, Milner and Wilkins had devoted considerable time to that work. Mr. J. Taylor and the Boys Club had made and donated a splendid hymn board to the church and Mrs. Walton an embroidered cloth for the pulpit.

Before closing his remarks the vicar quoted a letter from Bishop Burgess re the S.P.G. grant to the parish, which stated that the amount would have to be cut down and it therefore was necessary that Wainwright make every effort to become a self-supporting parish.

The vicar's warden, Mr. H. C. Montgomery, gave his report of church property and insurance. This revealed many additions and betterments to property including a new carpet, the gift of the W.A., and a new organ, largely subscribed privately. Many other building improvements were also cited. This report was adopted on motion.

The people's warden, Mr. R. G. Robertson, read the financial statement for 1931. All debts had been discharged and there was a nice credit balance on hand at the present time. This statement was adopted.

Mrs. Lilly, president of the Women's Auxiliary gave a lengthy report on the activities of that organization, which reflected untiring efforts of the officers and members. Their income amounted to $675.68, with disbursements of $672.63, leaving $103.05 as a balance for 1932.

Miss F. Montgomery reported on work of Junior W.A. and Irma Vestry and W.A. reports were also read and adopted as was the Sunday school report given by Miss B. I. Love.

The reports having been concluded, election of wardens and vestry (Continued on Page Four)

LACY DEATH

Miss Ella sighed and sank back wearily in her big armchair. The garment on which she was sewing fell into her lap and her hands folded over it. Her eyes closed slowly as she turned her head away from the glare of the electric light on the table at her side.

She found her work becoming daily more difficult. It was not only that her eyes were so weak; she could overcome that by bending close to the material. But her fingers, which had once been as nimble and dextrous as those of a pianist, were now so stiff that sometimes she could scarcely make them obey her desperate will.

For a moment, as she rested her head and went back to the days when she had been known as the best modiste in New Orleans. The city's smartest and wealthiest women had been daily customers at her establishment. She had loved her work then with all the passion of an artist, for then it had been art.

And now—plain sewing! House dresses, aprons! The drudgery was made almost unbearable by a keen memory of what a deep pleasure her work had once been to her. She recalled the season when she had received the order for the costume of the Queen of Mardi Gras. What extravagant praise had been hers when the elaborate gown was completed! It had been her creation, the work of her head and hands, and people who knew had said it equaled the work of the best shops in Paris and New York.

But all that had been so long ago. Between then and now lay the years of sickness, ruinous hospital and doctors bills, still more ruinous idleness.

And now no one but herself remembered what she had been. Plain sewing! She shook her head listlessly and opened her eyes. She was alone in the room, the light from the window showing her pale face. She had taken the street car just a block from the Lofton place and sternly, the present was not as black as she sometimes painted it. Not all of her old friends had forgotten her or lost faith in her ability to do beautiful work. There in her lap lay the proof of it—Jessie Lofton's wedding dress.

She sat up abruptly and her gaze went to the clock on the mantelpiece. Quarter after eleven!

Her hands shook as she picked up the satin material. Early to-morrow morning was the time set for the final fitting. There were at least two hours of work still to be done on it. It was her first important task in over a year. It would be dreadful, inexorable, not to have it ready when promised.

She arose stiffly from the chair, spread the nearly completed gown in her bed and then returned to the table near which she had been sitting. It was littered with fragments of cloth, thread, the tissue paper or patterns and other odds and ends. Miss Ella searched through them for several minutes, at first carelessly, then more systematically and at last with almost frantic nervousness.

Still not finding what she wanted she began a quick examination of the entire room. The bed, the battered old bureau, the mantelpiece, the small closet were all explored—without result.

At last Miss Ella stood near her armchair, trembling, her thin, lined face almost colorless.

That package of old lace which had been handed to her late that afternoon—what had she done with it?

She tried to remember every movement she had made since returning from Mrs. Lofton's place. And slowly but with mounting certainty, she realized she had not brought the package into her room.

A chill broke out all over her small body. Her eyes, large, deep brown and habitually misty, glistened with tears. That lace was extremely valuable; it had been in the Lofton family for generations. If it was lost. But it couldn't be. The denial was a prayer in Miss Ella's mind.

She had taken the street car just a block from the Lofton place and came directly home. She always put bundles in her lap when seated. Surely she hadn't left it—

A wave of relief swept across her face flooding it with color.

"Of course!" she exclaimed, and added aloud, "I know I did. I left it on Mrs. Lofton's porch. In the pocket of the awning. I remember putting it there before going down to the rose garden. And then—I got the other bundles but came off without that."

She stood for a moment considering what to do. That lace must be stitched on to Jessie Lofton's wedding gown tonight. The Loftons would, of course, send it to Miss Ella if she went to the corner drug store and phoned them. But she hesitated.

They had been so kind to her already. Of course—her head went up slightly—they would have no reason to regret letting her make Jessie's bridal dress. It was going to be an excellent piece of work. But the fact remained that the Loftons had been the truest of all her old friends, and she disliked to cause them any trouble as a result of her own carelessness. It was so late, and they would all be tired out with the preparations for the wedding.

On the other hand, it was nearly an hour's ride to the Lofton place, and Miss Ella would have to work through the night when she returned. Well—she sighed as she made her decision. She was nearly exhausted, but the forgotten lace was her fault and she must go for it.

It was nearly midnight when Miss Ella reached the Lofton home—a Southern colonial type of house on the outskirts of the city, set in large beautiful grounds that were almost a forest of shrubbery.

Miss Ella walked rapidly along the paved walk that led to the porch. She was thankful for the deep shadows that enveloped the entire place, making the house loom through its surrounding trees as a great, vaguely defined whiteness; thankful that there were no lights burning in the house. Apparently the family had retired. She would be able to get the package of lace and leave without any one ever knowing of the incident and of her carelessness.

Once on the porch, she groped a slow way to the left until she reached the swing. There she bent and felt for the pocket at one end. In another moment, a little quick intake of breath told that she had found the package of lace. Grasping it eagerly she straightened and turned.

As she did so, a voice, low and heavy and just audible through the intense silence, came to her out of the black darkness, from the ground below the porch.

"I'm tellin' you again," it said, "I heard somebody walkin' up dat pave ment."

Miss Ella's body stiffened. The voice was a man's and a deeply coarse one. It was answered by another, smoother much less coarse, but with a sinister coldness of tone:

"You're imaginin' things. The only ones that will be coming here this late are the ones we're waiting for. And they'll be in a car."

There was a short silence. The two men were coming across a side lawn towards the porch. That much, Miss Ella could judge from the direction and increasing nearness of their voices.

Her mind, paralyzed for a moment by the total unexpectedness of the thing had begun to clear. It came to her suddenly that there would undoubtedly be guards on the ground for the house was full of expensive presents. Then these two who had just evidently come from the rear of the place must be the guards. She would have to speak to them, explain her presence. Otherwise she—

Again came the man's tones from the cavern of the night—those of the second speaker. His voice was lowered guarded but closer and still very distinct:

"You didn't kill that guard, did you, Mangy?"

That question, with all its terrible through Miss Ella's consciousness when the answer came:

Why Corona is the CHAMPION PORTABLE of the World

CORONA is the World's Champion Portable on the following 8 exclusive points:

Strength: Corona has a rigid one-piece solid aluminum frame.

Simplicity: Fewer parts than any other standard keyboard typewriter.

Completeness: More big-machine features than any other portable typewriter.

Easy to Learn: Corona design is the result of 20 years' study of the needs of beginners.

War Service: An unequalled record for durability as the official portable of the Allied Armies.

Popularity: As many Coronas have been sold as all other portables combined.

Durability: Coronas purchased 20 years ago are still giving satisfactory service.

Beauty: Graceful in line; exquisitely finished in every detail.

Drop into our store today and see Corona. The minute you lay eyes on it you will realize why a million people use it—why so many business men, novelists, newspaper men, and students in schools and colleges prefer Corona to any other portable.

Come in and try Corona with your own hands. See how speedy it is—how smoothly it operates. If you can't come to the store, simply telephone us and a Corona will be sent to your home or office for examination. There is no obligation.

Snowfalls on the open prairies tend to travel about with the winds that blow. Such travel may extend many miles. When an obstacle is encountered, snow is deposited at the lee-snow-trap provision may mean irreparable wreckage to plantings.

The snow-trap is easily made. A beard fence; native grapes planted along a page wire fence, or piles of brush, serve well, showing that even a four-foot impediment causes the wind to deposit most of its snow burden. A single-row hedge of Caragana is effective, and the plants should be placed a foot apart. Some of the willows do well over much of the prairies. The laurel-leaf variety is esteemed at Morden. The sharp-leaf, or green willow, is probably more thrifty in some localities, and attains greater height. Box elder, "Manitoba maple," in spite of its hospitality to insect pests, is valuable as a constituent of the tree row. In Southern Manitoba, where the water-table is high, the native cottonwood is a most thrifty and tall-growing tree.

As the outer row of trees planted from 60 to 100 feet from the inner rows, or shelter-belt proper, to provide the trap for drifting snow. The first choice for trees in this district is a mixture of cottonwood and box elder, planted alternately three or four feet apart. For intermediate height, laurel-leaf willow is selected. For smaller areas, that most valuable of prairie shrubs, caragana alborensis, has no close rival.

BARLEY AS A POULTRY FEED

Evidence so far available indicates that barley could be successfully used as a poultry feed to a far greater extent than it is at present. At the poultry plant, Experimental Farm, Brandon, barley has been used in the regular laying ration for several years, and good results in egg production have been obtained. Corn and barley are almost equal in feeding value as well as chemical analysis. Corn has always been regarded as a suitable poultry feed and has been used fairly extensively for this purpose in spite of costing from forty to sixty dollars per ton.

A series of eight tests have been made at the Experimental Farm, Brandon, to compare the relative efficiency and economy of corn and barley as poultry feed. Rations containing one-third corn in both the mash and hard grain were compared with rations containing an equal amount of barley, and rations containing one-half corn were compared with rations containing one-half barley. The balance of the scratch grain mixture in each case was made up of oats and wheat, and the balance of the mash mixture was made up of oat chop, shorts, and meat meal. The tests were each continued for six months commencing in October. The average results of these tests show the birds receiving barley to have produced eight per cent more eggs than those receiving corn. The cost of feed per dozen eggs laid was thirty per cent higher when corn was used in the ration than when barley was used.

Tests have also been conducted comparing Trebi and O.A.C. 21 barley as poultry feed. The average results of the four tests so far conducted show very little difference in the feeding value of these two varieties.

One precaution is necessary in feeding barley to poultry, in order to insure best results and avoid troubles that have at times been experienced. Barley is low in vitamin content and this part of the ration should be supplemented with suitable green feed such as alfalfa or clover leaves, or sprouted oats, or surplus vegetables. The feeding of one teaspoonful of cod liver oil daily to each twelve birds will also prove profitable in increasing production during the winter months, and will further supplement the vitamin content of a ration containing a large amount of barley.

 The first five minutes of a fire may cost you thousands of dollars. Have a fire department in your home at all times. The Liberty fire extinguisher is one of the best on the market; always ready for use. Sold by Joe Welch.

SHOW YOUR
INTELLIGENCENewspapers are not going into the discard.
The new talking picture advertising on the screen isn't going to replace newspaper advertising to any great extent, if any.Radio advertising isn't going to grow and grow while newspaper advertising shrinks and shrinks.Campaign organs and hand bills of various kinds are not going to replace the newspaper for certain kinds of advertising and for forming an intelligent public opinion.The radio, the motion picture screen and personal organs are not going to thrive at the expense of the newspaper.All these things have their value
and can fill that place and deliver their value without supplanting or crippling the newspaper.One reason for the newspaper holding its position and advancing it from time to time is because the newspaper fills a need and the second reason is because the newspaper editors and publishers have grown with their job.A newspaper is a medium which must be intelligently used to be effective, and the more intelligent its use the more its effectiveness increases. And intelligence is just another word for common sense. The only trouble with failing to define intelligence is because some think smart
aleckism, trickiness and anything
other than direct, honest and properly directed advertising is an exhibition of intelligence.JUDGE NOT THAT YE BE NOT JUDGED

(By Arthur B. Rhinow)

A young, unmarried minister at one time preached a sermon on the proper way of bringing up children.
Years afterward, when he was the father of four daughters, he told the writer that his ideas on the subject had undergone a change."No two children are alike," he said, "and their peculiarities often call for considerable modification of general rules." Before he was married he dealt with theories, but facts are stubborn things.How easy it is for aloof critics to score the people who are in the thick of it, and how futile—"If I were a minister and I had the running of that church believe me I'd—," and so forth and so forth.Yes, yes, my dear critic. You would be perfectly right if human beings were bricks but they are not even stones. In spite of all our advances in psychology, every human being is a mystery to every other human being, and every man, woman and child helps to complicate the church problem. Better come in and help in the work. Your criticism may turn into charity."If I had the running of this city
one of the first things I would do would be to—," and so forth and so forth.Well, brother, maybe you would and maybe you wouldn't. But your views as to the practical affairs of the city would certainly undergo a change, because, again, you would be dealing with human beings, not merely with streets and bridges and wharves. Criticism is proper, but let the critic remember that it is hard for the man on the outside to appreciate the difficulties of the men actually in the work—"If I were he, believe me, I'd be different."What you really mean to say is,
"If I were he and still I, I would not do as he does." But you see that is impossible. You are not he, and you certainly cannot be you and he at the same time. Not one of us can entirely put himself into the other fellow's place. Then we had better be charity with our criticism.Mr. Joe Mackenzie is away in the city in connection with business matters this week.A PENNY
IN YOUR HANDWhat was your first adventure as a customer before the world? Possibly as a very tiny tot with a penny
in your fist, and your nose flattened against a shop window. Long you debated with yourself—cocoa-nuts, or licorice pellets, or chocolate soldiers? It was a serious business, for you and the storekeeper.But he put his best values before you, and in the end everybody was happy—you because you'd made a satisfactory purchase; he, because he'd made a satisfied customer.In that transaction blossomed a buying acumen which no doubt has helped to serve ever since. Like-wise
the aim-to-please policy of that store keeper to this very day is the golden rule of successful merchants and manufacturers. Read any of their advertisements and see. Can they afford to spend money for advertising space and then disappoint you?
Of course not. The goods they advertise are their best offerings. They count on them to win both your immediate and continued patronage.When there's something you need or want—or might want if attractively made known to you—clutch your pennies and dollars in either hand;
study the advertisements in this paper and surely you'll be guided in the direction that lead to the most for your money. Read the advertisements
before you shop.THINKING ANY OF THAT WONDERFUL COMING TRIP?America's greatest poet once described the Rhine as the "most beautiful river in the world." Deeply clef rocks of slate, legend-haunted
ruins of ancient strongholds, beautiful vineyard-clad slopes, picturesque villages, venerable towns full of superb art treasures, magnificent cathedrals, stately castles—all these are alternately reflected in the Rhine's swift flowing silvery waters
and the adjacent valleys of the Ruhr
and Wupper, Sieg and Moselle, Lange-Nahe, Main and Neckar, are not less attractive.Some of the most famous German spas, including Aix-la-Chapelle, Ems Nouvenahr, Wiesbaden, Homburg, Kreuznach and others, are situated in the region of the Rhine. The unrivalled quality of Rhenish wines
has ever been a favourite theme of poets. Among the most renowned Rhenish wines we may mention the following: Steinberger, Johannisber-
ger, Bernsteiner, Zeltinger, Piesporter
etc., and are not less celebrated than the others.As a commercial highway, the Rhine is the most important river,
not only in Germany but in Europe.
The chief ports on it are Duisburg, Mainheim, Mayence, Cologne and Düsseldorf. But also in every other respect the Rhineland is simply provided with the most up-to-date mean of communication, being crossed by the main railroad lines from Holland to Switzerland and Paris to Berlin.Cologne, on the Rhine, is the largest and most important city in the Rhineland. The town forms a wide semi-circle on the left bank of the river and is connected by three magnificent bridges with its suburbs on the opposite side. A Roman settlement in the year 38 B.C., Cologne developed after A.D. 50 into a Roman colony, and subsequently rose under Charlemagne, to the dignity of an Archbishopric. Handicraft and trade flourished here in the Middle Ages when Cologne likewise, achieved fame as an art centre, notably in respect to architecture and painting.
To-day it is a leading commercial emporium and its annual fairs in the spring are universally celebrated.Wiesbaden—This city is world famous as the Quae Mattiacorum of the Romans and is beautifully situated amid orchards and vineyards
on the southern slopes of the Taunus Hills. It enjoys an exceptionally mild and equable climate and attracts over two hundred thousandtourists every year. Its sodium chloride thermal springs are of the finest in the world.The seat of the oldest University in Germany is Heidelberg, also on the Rhine. Near this town can be found one of the finest ruins in the country: It is the Heidelberg Castle
which is beautifully situated high above the town on the Konigsberg.
The first authentic record of this castle dates from 1303. In February 1689 the castle was destroyed by the French.Another very beautiful city, situated at the confluence of the Rhine and Main Rivers is Mayence. This place was originally a Celtic settlement and is one of the most ancient towns in Germany. At the beginning of the second Christian century, Mayence was the capital of a Roman province and later on it became one of the most important Roman fortified camps. In the later Middle Ages
it rose to the dignity of a "Free Imperial Town" and for more than two hundred years it was the seat of the Archbishop-Elector, who fulfilled the high functions of Chancellor of the Holy Roman Empire
today, it is a lively industrial centre.So that this as well as many other parts of Europe can be seen to advantage, this newspaper in co-operation with the White Star Line and Economic Tours Inc. have arranged a series of four interesting itineraries for low cost tours. The first trip leaves Montreal, June 11th aboard the S.S. "Doric" and this is only one of five departure dates for the tours. The itineraries have been very carefully prepared and provide the utmost in sightseeing for the time provided.

THE GASOLINE TAX

Not the least of the petroleum industry's achievements is that of having exalted taxation to new heights—heights undreamed of by the deficit-harassed legislator of only a few years ago. We may squirm at paying forty mills on part of our incomes or thirty mills on the assessment of our real properties, or five per cent sales tax or two cents on a cheque, but we pay twenty per cent
on our gasoline purchases and do not write to the papers or say that there should be a law against it.Such have been the seductive wiles
of the tax regulating authorities in our provincial government that it has all come about without any fuss
or feathers and every time the Provincial Treasurer has an inquiry
from the bank about an overdraft
the impulse is to slap something more onto the gasoline tax. Why not? The gasoline tax is easy and cheap to collect and not one person
in a thousand keeps an account of what it costs him directly and probably no one knows the indirect cost.
It isn't like a tax on property. You have the property and when the schedule of taxation is revised you can figure out right away what the revised rates will mean to you during any period of time. It isn't like the succession duty. You can determine how much it will cost your heirs, if you are so fortunate as to have an estate and heirs. It isn't even like the amusement tax—which
by the way only amounts to ten per cent, instead of twenty per cent as does the gasoline tax. You can reduce the amusement tax by buying a cheaper ticket, or for that matter
you don't have to go to the show at
all. With the gasoline tax you do not know how much you are going to pay and as already said you rarely know how much you have paid. If you want enlightenment in the latter connection you can easily have it
by keeping a record of your gasoline
purchases for a few months, and multiplying the total number of gallons
by five cents. The result may open your eyes. The gasoline tax is a sort of "if, as, and when" tax, and so few
of us take it seriously into account.
Irrepressible optimists, we always feel there will be no "when" as far as tax collection goes. When we pay it most of us do not realize that we are paying a tax, but we say to ourselves that the price of gasoline is pretty high and in these hard times
we will have to see if we can't use
the car a little less.Proponents of easily and cheaply collected taxes are talking about increasing the gasoline tax. They need the revenue, but that isn't the only reason for increasing the gasoline tax. The particular reason is because the gasoline tax has been in the past such a fruitful source of revenue and because it has been so easy to collect. But they may be making a mistake if they credit the motorist with all the patience of Job. If the motorist's shoulders were as broad as these proponents of increased gasoline taxes seem to think
no highway would be wide enough for him to walk on.We venture the prophecy that further increases in the gasoline tax will defeat their own ends. We believe that the tax of five cents a

It is as if that gasoline can bear.
We think that further increases will result in reduced consumption and,
of course, a heavier tax on gallons will produce no more revenue
than a lighter tax on a large number of gallons. We think too, that there will be more evasion of the gasoline tax if it is increased. There is evasion now with the five cent tax,
and there will be much more incentive to evade with a six or seven cent tax. Then too, evasion is most easily practiced by the vendor of foreign gasoline and so a hardship
will be worked on the Canadian re-finer. The Canadian refiner reports on his business to the provincial tax collector, but who is to report on purchases by an importer in a foreign country?It is often stated that the gasoline tax is the most equitable tax
because it makes the motorist pay for the roads according to the use he makes of them. That seems to be so, but is it only the man who rolls
along the highway in a car or truck who benefits by the roads? What about the property owner whose land appreciates in value because of the road; the storekeeper who draws customers from a large area because of the road; the farmer who finds a larger and more profitable market for his produce because of the roads? It is not the motorist alone who benefits by the roads.
Everyone benefits and all should be required to pay for a portion of the benefits derived. That the motorist should foot the entire bill is wrong.It seems to be the experience of those few states of the Union which have tried a tax of more than five cents a gallon that the difficulties of collection increase very greatly and that the incentive to evasion is so strong that a large number of people cannot resist it. We may expect as much in Canada if the gasoline tax
be further increased.—Imperial Oil

PAIN
Comes

WHAT many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated,
and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes the acids
and restores the stomach to normal.
The best alkali known to modern science is Phillips' Milk
of Magnesia.

One teaspoon of this harmless,
tasteless alkali in water neutralizes
excess acidity many times that much acid, and the symptoms disappear
at once. You will never use crude cathartics again, once you learn the benefits of this. Go, get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips'
Milk of Magnesia prescribed by doctors for 50 years in correcting stomach acidity. No other drug works like it. (Made in Canada.)

 Keep your grain at the market, and help boost the price. You will need some lumber for a granary, and will find this at the Atlas yard. Phone

Mr. F. Fish was in the city for several days last week.

Crops were very poor last year. Few had any grain to sell. I bought about 5,000 bushels, but handle coal and run a grain mill, so I keep busy. The railroads are broke. The section boss does all his own work, and at that is paid off three days a week. Higher-ups and officials are losing their jobs. The government this side spent millions to build good highways and forced the people to pay for them and now the trucks and autos are putting the railroads out of business. But in spite of the depressing outlook several favorable signs are making appearance, and by June 1st business should show a fair improvement and in a year start to boom again.

With best regards to yourself and all my Wainwright friends,
M. J. OXLEY.

A GOURMAND'S SONG

(By A. K. R.)

I will sing of the days down on the farm
When the leaves came drifting down
And we gathered the apples red and white,
Flocked yellow, and green and brown.
The Winesaps and Jonathans, Baldwins too,
Greensings and Russets and all,
Stored in the cellar in separate bins
In the first cool days of fall.
And, oh, the fruit pies and the pickles good,
And amber cider swappy.
Now, there is a drink that cannot be beat
To make one well and happy.
There were nuts as well back home
On the farm,
To be gathered, husked and dried.
Butternuts, walnuts, hickory nuts too,
Hazel-nuts, chestnuts beside.
Hung high in the attic were pop-corn ears
Waiting for winter night.
When over the red-hot stove they would turn
To pop-puffs of fluffy white.
A white-as-snow heap in a big blue pan
Buttered and salted to eat;
Or, mother would make some pop-corn balls,
An extra delicious treat.
When the Springtime came back home on the farm
And the sap began to run,
We would stir the boiling red syrup down,
And dream in the warm, spring sun
Of strawberries ripe with sugar and cream,
Of cantaloup hearts of gold,
Of Dixie melons with sweet, red hearts
Chippy and juicy and cold.
And, oh, the nut cakes that my mother made
The jelly and marmalade,
The preserves and the jams and sparkling drinks
For riches I would not trade.
Rich clusters of grapes in the garden hung
Both green and of royal hue
And blackberries, raspberries, cherries red,
Gooseberries, mulberries blue.
I'll sing you a round for the honey bees
With their treasure amber clear;
Marvelous honey extracted from flowers
And the clover blooming near.
Home-made bread and butter with honey spread
And a glass of cold, rich milk—
Ah, no hungry youngster e'er better fared
The dressed in velvet and silk.
Lo, I've sung my song; 'tis a gourmand's song,
And you'll long with me, I know,
For the plums, and the pears and peaches sweet,
For the nuts, and the honey, and maple treat,
And pop-corn ears in a row.

GRAND HISTORICAL FILM AT THEATRE

NO PICTURE EVER MADE
HAS POWER OF LINCOLN

"Abraham Lincoln," which shows here this week end, is pictorial drama at its greatest. Though the picture possesses all of the ingredients of an historical spectacle—big sets, battle scenes and mobs—its greatness is founded on the simplicity of its direction and the sympathetic treatment of its romantic and tragic scenes.

The whole of Lincoln's life is paraded on the screen, from the time of his birth to his assassination at Ford's Theatre in Washington just as he had realized a successful conclusion to the Civil War.

D. W. Griffith has not grown maid in his direction of this United Artists picture because Lincoln happened to be his personal hero as well as the nation's saint. He has taken the giant and put him to work retracing the important incidents of his remarkable life.

Lincoln's heroic figure is seen in all its multiplicity of strange moods. The artistry with which this feat in character is accomplished is largely due to the superb acting of Walter Huston.

Huston makes Lincoln a human being who loves and reacts to disappointments as any other man might. Through his interpretation Lincoln becomes one of the best drawn character portraits shown on the screen.

The cast, which numbers over one hundred principal speaking players, was chosen wisely. Una Merkel, a newcomer to the screen, plays the role of "Ann Rutledge," Lincoln's childhood sweetheart. Her love scenes with Huston are remarkable for their quiet beauty, and the scene at her death bed is tragedy, sublimely directed and acted.

Don't miss this grand historical feature.

DISAPPOINTMENT IS OPPORTUNITY

"What's the use of living if you can't get something out of life?" So one of the characters in a recent movie-drama laments. She suffers from what she believes to be a humdrum married life. Her husband is a hard-working but dour man, while she is disposed to gaiety. In her opinion, they are mismatched, and she feels like a prisoner. "What's the use of living if you can't get something out of life?"

But the opportunities for getting something out of life in those very restraints. It is when we are hemmed in or disappointed that we often unfold the finest within and gain those spiritual treasures which alone enrich. Every disappointment is an opportunity.

Some of the choicest gems that Robert Louis Stevenson bequeathed to humanity would never have been written if he had not been an invalid crossing land and sea in search of health, and the world would probably not enjoy Pilgrim's Progress today if John Bunyan had not been thrown into jail. Abraham Lincoln would have been eminent under any circumstances, but the rare beauty of his soul was evolved in the agony of the war.

There is opportunity in the very restraints, dear lady of the drama. Carry on, bear the cross, and you will develop the fine patience that blesses not only the life of the burden bearer, but also the lives of all with whom she comes in contact that patience that loves on and wins love.

 Now that the holiday season will soon be over, it will be a good time to make those needed repairs to your home, and take advantage of the real bargains in building material at the Atlas yard. Joe Welch, mgr.

Overcoming the setback of heavy snowdrifts, Mr. A. Dupre has equipped an auto with skis on the front axle and double driving wheels in the rear. He is now getting around all over despite the heavy snow.

What Shall We Name the Baby?

A SYMPOSIUM BY INTERESTING PEOPLE OF TODAY
CONDUCTED BY WILLIAM A. LEWIN

To select a suitable name for each baby that comes into the world is, indeed, an absorbing problem. Nearly 2,000,000 new babies were born last year. And yet there are less than 1,000 names to choose from. Parents search telephone directories for suggestions. Shall we create some interesting new names?

My favorite names for girls are as follows:

FLORENCE—It always makes me think of a lovely garden, also of the beautiful Italian city which is associated with Dante and Savonarola.
DOROTHY and THEODOCIA—Not much of a gift of God.
LUCY—It suggests to me the light of a sweet and bright personality.

ANNE—It is my beloved teacher's first name.

BEATRICE—It is a name of fair women as it means happy, blessed.
ROSALIND—It always recalls to me the beautiful, lovable girl in "As You Like It."
SYLVIA—It suggests the charm and freedom of woods and fields. It seems to breathe health and joy.

ABRAHAM is a name of Hebrew origin meaning "father of a multitude." Abraham Lincoln, sixteenth President of the United States, is the most famous American who has borne this name. "We're coming, Father Abraham," was the response to Lincoln's call for volunteers. Abe is an American contraction of Abraham. It means Isaac, meaning "father of height." "O father Abram," says Shylock in Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice."

ADELAIDE is a name of Teutonic origin meaning "noble battle maid." Diminutives are Addy and Adelle.

USES AND ABUSES OF LIGHT

Appreciation of sunlight is nothing new. The ancient Romans had their sun-rooms or solaria in which to relax or enjoy the sunshine. Animals look for a sunny spot in which to stretch out, and the plant turns itself towards the sun.

Common experience has shown us that life in the out-of-doors increases our sense of well-being. Part of this feeling comes from living in the sunshine. Extensive research has shown the ill effects, upon animal life, which follows the elimination of sunshine.

During recent years, artificial sources of light have been made available in the various forms of lamps which are now being manufactured. Almost every new scientific discovery becomes a fad, and so the really legitimate claims and the value of light therapy have been rather lost sight of among the over-enthusiastic and extreme statements which are commonly made.

The light which we see comes from the luminous rays. In addition, there are rays which are invisible, the infra-red rays, and the ultra-violet rays, or actinic rays. The ultra-violet are not the violet rays which we can see, for the violet are luminous or light rays, whereas the ultra-violet are beyond the violet or light rays, and are invisible.

Anything which cannot be seen and which is associated with electricity in any form, gives a general feeling of mystery and so is impressive to many people. It is for this reason apparently that the indiscriminate use of lamps, for any and every condition has become popular.

If one or other form of light treatment is to do good, it is necessary that the proper form be selected, and that it be given in correct amounts and at the right intervals.

Sunshine lamps give infra-red, ultra-violet and luminous rays in varying proportions, depending upon the lamp. A general tonic effect is secured, but the part played in this by the exposure of the body to the air—the air-bath—must not be overlooked.

Infra-red rays have a soothing effect and stimulate the circulation. It is obvious that if the treatment required is an ice-bag, harm will result from the improper use of infra-rays. The ultra-violet rays which cause the pigmentation of the skin, or sun burn, have their great value in the prevention of rickets and in the promotion of good growth.

Lamps may be much stronger than the sun, and therefore, there is need for extreme care in their use. It is not a case of the more the better; the right amount does good, and too much does harm. Lamps should not be used indiscriminately, but upon the advice of someone who is competent to give advice.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College St., Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

Winter Ham Delights

By Betty Barclay

Good old-fashioned ham may be served in many novel forms. A touch of sugar often makes such a dish surprisingly delicious by emphasizing the flavor and seasoning the food at the same time. Try these recipes and see how delicious they are:

Ham Pie

- 2 cups cold cooked ham
- cut in half inch cubes
- 3 potatoes
- 1 onion
- 1 green pepper
- 1/2 cup celery
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- Salt and pepper
- 2 cups water
- Rich biscuit dough

Peel and slice potatoes and onions. Remove stem and seeds from pepper. Slice. Chop celery. Add ham, seasonings and water to vegetables. Cook all together until vegetables are tender. Stir in flour to thicken, adding more water if needed to make enough gravy to cover. Put mixture in a baking dish. Cover with a rich biscuit dough. Bake until crust is done, about twenty minutes. Serve hot.

Derbyshire Sandwiches

Run through the meat grinder enough finely sliced boiled ham to make one cup when minced. Add one-half teaspoon mixed mustard, a few drops tobacco sauce, one teaspoon sugar, salt and pepper to taste and enough Chili sauce to make a smooth paste. Spread on thin slices of buttered bread.

Prune Whip

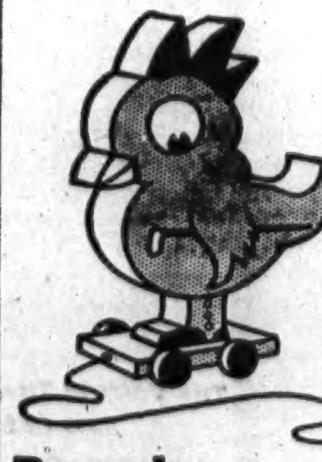

- 1 pint milk
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 junket tablet
- 1 tablespoon cold water
- 1/2 teaspoon lemon extract
- 1/3 cup prune pulp
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 egg white

Beat egg white until stiff and sugar gradually until thoroughly mixed. Add prune pulp (prepared by rubbing cooked prunes through a sieve) and lemon juice. Half fill 5 tea glasses with the whip. Prepare junket according to directions

QUIET COFFEE

The praises of coffee have been sung by many poets, and myriad virtues have been attributed to it but it has remained for Dr. Donald A. Laird the eminent psychologist, to discover new values in "the cup that cheers but not inebriates."

Following three years of investigation at Colgate University, in noise and its effects on the human system, Dr. Laird has announced that coffee has a markedly beneficial effect in offsetting the digestive effects of noise. After exhaustive tests with "human guinea pigs," he found that the aroma as well as the taste

Restless CHILDREN

CHILDREN will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than a more powerful medicine.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is need. In cases of colic, diarrhea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. A coated tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed.

Miss Ann Adam's Recipe for Bran Muffins

1/2 cup bran 1/4 cup sugar
1 1/2 cups flour 1/4 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt 1 egg
3 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder
1/2 cup melted shortening

Mix the bran with the sifted flour dry ingredients. Make a well in the centre and pour in the milk and well-beaten egg. With the fewest possible number of strokes, blend these ingredients and stir in the shortening. Half fill greased muffin pans and bake in a hot oven, 400° F., 15 to 20 minutes. A few chopped dates, lightly coated with some of the measured flour, may be added.

Unshaken Faith in Future of Canada Expressed at Royal Bank Annual Meeting

"I have witnessed many depressions during the last fifty years and I see nothing in this one which weakens my faith in this country."—Sir Herbert Holt, President.

"While I do not wish to voice my prediction as to the date of business recovery, it will be very disappointing if an improvement does not take place in 1932."—M. W. Wilson, Vice-President and General Manager.

At the annual meeting of The Royal Bank of Canada held at the Head Office in Montreal, both the President, Sir Henry Holt, and the Vice-President and General Manager, Mr. M. W. Wilson, were emphatic in their expressions of unqualified confidence in Canada. Sir Herbert Holt's mature and world-wide business experience is reflected in his statement, "I have witnessed many depressions during the course of the last fifty years and I see nothing in this one which weakens my faith in this country." The tone of both addresses was one of quiet optimism, exemplified by Mr. Wilson's remark, "While I do not wish to voice any prediction as to the date of business recovery, it will be very disappointing if an improvement does not take place during 1932. The leaders of politics and finance in the principal countries are capable of bringing this about and the indictment against any who block the way will be severe indeed." The President pointed out that with quoted values of most securities well under their intrinsic worth, improvement could be expected as and when measures were taken which would result in a return of confidence in the United States. Earlier in his remarks he had referred to the splendid record of the Canadian banking system during a time when disorganization in finance was accentuating the depression in many other countries. He expressed the opinion that the relatively satisfactory position of Canada could be attributed in no small degree to the stability of our banking organization and the way in which industry had been supported.

Before moving the adoption of the report Sir Herbert referred with profound regret to the death of Mr. Neill after a lifetime spent in the service of the bank. "In his passing the bank has lost a wise counselor, his associate a loyal friend, and Canada an eminent banker and distinguished citizen."

After dealing briefly with the situation in agriculture and the principal manufacturing industries, Sir Herbert referred to the plans which are under way for a consolidation of the principal newspaper companies in Eastern Canada, and expressed the opinion that the development through difficult of accomplishment was a constructive one and highly desirable if Canada was to continue to maintain the supremacy to which she is entitled by reason of her natural advantages.

Railways
The appointment of a railway commission was mentioned with approval and the belief expressed that such a commission should be capable of bringing in recommendations which would in a large measure solve the present very serious situation caused by uneconomic competition and duplication of services. The President stated "Savings to the country of from $60,750,000 a year are possible and this without impairment of service to the public."

Imperial Conference
Pointing out that as long as other nations raise intolerable tariff barriers against British Empire goods it is necessary that the different parts of the Empire should protect themselves by concerted action, he expressed hope in the results of the Imperial Conference to be held in Ottawa, provided careful analysis and close study produced a scientific structure which would stimulate reciprocal Empire trade without handicapping home industry.

Public Finance

The success of the National Service Loan was referred to as a notable achievement. He stressed the fact that both internal and external revenue had been reduced by the decline in the activity of trade and that excessive expenditures by governments and municipalities had placed a heavy burden of interest payments on the people. "There never was a time in our history when it was so necessary to avoid extravagance of every kind, and governments, Federal, Provincial and Municipal, should follow the splendid example set by the British National Government in reducing the cost of administration and balancing their budget."

Closing his remarks Sir Herbert said in part, "It has been said that it is darkest just before the dawn, and in previous depressions conditions have seemed discouraging at a time when improvement had already set in. The violence of the depression must of itself tend to produce a strong reaction. It may well be that the gold countries are now on the verge of a rise in the price level. With a sound and strongly integrated banking system, no important investments in depreciated securities of foreign governments, an industrious and virtuous people who have maintained their morale unimpaired, and with a system of government permitting prompt and decisive action, Canada is in a relatively satisfactory position and we are justified in looking to the future with confidence."

General Manager's Address

Mr. M. W. Wilson, Vice-President and General Manager, stated that maintenance of the Bank's assets at a figure as high as $825,000,000 reflected not only the conservation of existing business but also the acquisition of new and desirable connections. He referred to the substantial over-subscription of the Dominion of Canada National Service Loan as an achievement of which our government and Canadians generally may well be proud.

Strong Liquid Position Maintained

The liquid position of the bank was maintained at substantially the same ratio as a year ago, quickly realizable assets being more than 48% of liabilities to the public. In referring to the enviable record of the Canadian banking system during the period of world depression, Mr. Wilson said, "Once again the ability of the Canadian banking system to take care of the needs of the country has been clearly demonstrated. The type of organization under which they operate enables our banks to take a broad view of the transactions that come before them and I think it will be admitted that the disposition has been to deal with problems in a sympathetic and constructive manner."

Business in Other Countries
"Entirely satisfactory," were the words used in describing the bank's experience during the last year in the foreign countries where it operates.

Mr. Wilson pointed out that the Bank's foreign branches have never been allowed to expose themselves to risk of loss through exchange fluctuations and as a result their experience during the last year had been entirely satisfactory.

Commodity Levels
The General Manager expressed the opinion that the restoration of commodity price levels to the basis of 1924-1928 was essential to a really satisfactory recovery in world business.

ness. He made favourable reference to the anti-deflation measures now being considered by the United States Congress and felt that they justified the hope that corrective forces would soon be at work in that country.

Business Psychology

"As the depression continues the factor of business psychology is one of constantly increasing importance," Mr. Wilson declared. Distrust and lack of confidence are largely responsible for the extremes to which world business has gone. He indicated that, as in Canada had been particularly fortunate in this respect and said, "Confidence in our country and in our ability to solve the problems that present themselves is above the average and in my opinion is amply justified by our past record and future prospects." Lack of international confidence was the main obstacle in the way to world-wide business recovery. Mr. Wilson went on to express the opinion that confidence could be restored by co-operation between the leaders of politics and finance in the principal countries. Signs are not lacking that progress may be made along these lines and this formed the basis for his statement, "While I do not wish to venture any prediction as to the date of business recovery, it will be very disappointing if an improvement does not take place during 1932."

Mr. Wilson pointed out in vigorous terms that we must not get into the frame of mind in which we think of losses as pertaining to all business activities. The majority are holding their own, he declared, and while reduced earnings for the time being may be inevitable, we should be gratified that in this period of transition a great majority of our Canadian concerns are more than covering operating expenses and our agricultural population is staying on the land and maintaining the acreage under cultivation. Closing on a note of optimism, Mr. Wilson said, "There are signs of stabilization in a number of directions, our physical assets are being kept intact, and with reasonable economy and hard work, we shall find that Canada will be one of the first countries to feel the good results of business recovery."

"You can't prove it by me kid. I hit him plenty hard wid de rubber stick. Dat's all I know. Say it ain't safe to be talking like this is it?"

"Why not, as long as we don't yell the servants are all in that house in the back. Old man Lofton and his wife sleep on the second floor in the rear and they're both hard of hearing anyhow."

"Is dat right? Say, what a swell chance to make a haul. De place must be filled with the junk."

A short laugh, metallic and vicious stabbed through the gloom into Miss Ella's wildly beating heart. The man who could laugh like that could do anything. Why were those men waiting down there? If they were burglars why weren't they trying to break into the house?

"You're right, Mangy. The voice that had laughed broke through her whirling thoughts. The place is filled with junk—that I'm supposed to be helping to protect. And it would be a swell chance to grab a lot of 'oot if we weren't here on other business. But our job is to kill Ray Mansford and weren't not taking any chances on spoiling that."

"Dat's right! But it's a devil of a note, I says, croakin' a guy in his god's front yard de night before dey are gonna get hitched! The coon tones were half earnest, half jesting. The other voice answered indifferently: "Mansford had it coming to him for a long time. You know what he's done to our mob since he's been D. A. One of the boys swung last week. Three more doing stints. Slitter expecting to pass the word any day now that we all have to fade."

"Sure, I know about dat wise guy Mansford. If Slitter had-give me d' green light on him, I'd a croaked him at de foot. But dis idear of bumpin' him off with his mob lookin on is—

"She won't see much! It's altogether too dark."

Kerect as usual, kid. But dat goes for you, too. How you gonna see him?"

"Flashlight." The two men were at the foot of the stairs now. The one who was apparently in command continued: "They ought to be here pretty soon, Mangy. You go down to the edge of the lawn. Hide there and get in Mansford's car while he is coming up the walk with the girl. I'm going to wait here on the top step. The vine will hide me enough with it black like it is tonight, and I shoot straighter when I can aim down. The minute my gat barks you start the car. And when I reach there start driving like the very devil."

"O. K." It was little more than a grunt in Mangy's thick tones. The padded sounds of his steps on the pavement carried to Miss Ella's ears for a second, then died away.

She knew that she was alone on the porch with a murderer waiting there to kill.

Why couldn't he hear the wild thumping of her heart? To her it was as loud as the pain of it was cruel. It was killing her. She could feel her knees shaking, and knew that in another second she would lose consciousness and drop. Then he would know she was there. He would come and strangle her. A man like that would take no chances, stop at nothing.

Well, death would be infinitely better than this horrible waiting in the utter dark and the utter silence to be a witness to a hideous murder.

She wouldn't fight the nausea and the overpowering terror any longer. She would let herself go.

But no, she must not do that. If she did there would be no one to save Mr. Mansford when he came—no one to make even an attempt to save him from the trap of death. He would die without a chance, and Jessie Lofton would see him die. It would kill her too—the shock of the ghastly experience. And she was so pretty and sweet, so young and tonight she must be so happy.

Their wedding would become—

It couldn't be. One of Miss Ella's small, wrinkled hands was hugging the package of lace against her breast. The other went to the porch balustrade for support, as she felt herself sway.

As though the contact with something solid gave her new strength the spell of faintness passed. She drew in a deep silent breath and with it new hope.

She had successfully thrown off physical paralysis. Then she could overcome the fear that gripped and numbed her brain—overcome it and think of some way to save Mansford.

But how? It was easier to make the strong determination than to plan an actual method. If she so much as moved, she would betray her presence to the killer. But she would find some way.

Then it would have to be immediately. The thought went through her like a keen, shooting pain, for two lines of light had abruptly stabbed through the inky shadows that lay along the road just beyond the Lofton grounds. Swiftly, the duplicate streams of brilliancy shot along for a moment and then stopped. The hum of an automobile engine sounded briefly and died. The car had stopped.

There was a moments deep silence intensified by a barely audible scraping sound as the waiting gunman shifted his position slightly. Then a laugh came floating through the night, happy and silvery, a girl's laugh. Jessie Lofton! Laughing! Her lover's voice speaking words Miss Ella could not distinguish, followed.
